West Shore Corridor Transportation Project Update Richard Enty-Enty and Associates LLC

Efforts to launch the Project's Alternatives Analysis are ongoing. To streamline the study process, the Lorain County Community Alliance has become the primary project sponsor, although the Lorain County Commissioners will continue to provide critical oversight and approvals. All pending questions about the grant application have been answered to the Federal Transit Administration's (FTA) satisfaction. The West Shore Corridor transportation Project (WSCTP) grant application was entered into FTA's "TEAM" electronic grant processing system last year and with the questions answered, the application can now be officially submitted. Funding for this initial study phase total $428,750: $343,000 Federal share, $85,750 local share, including $68,600 cash and $17,150 in-kind contribution of agency staff time. The County has also begun the process to acquire all outstanding local share funds and the necessary amendments to the region's and the state's transportation plans are underway so that the Federal funds may be programmed and received. Applications for a new West Shore Commuter Rail Task Force Advisor position were solicited and screened to identify the top candidates. This position is needed to assist the Task Force with the following: expand and strengthen Task Force influence through coalition-building initiatives; collaborate with Corridor communities to create highly transit-supportive land use and zoning alternatives; help build support for funding options needed to support any new major transportation investments. The position will be filled following candidate review by the Task Force, approval by the Lorain County Commissioners and execution of the Federal grant, which is providing the funds to support the position. To supplement the initial funds awarded by Congress in the Fiscal Year (FY) 2008 Appropriation sponsored by Congresswoman Betty Sutton, another appropriation request for FY 2011 was recently submitted to both Congresswoman Betty Sutton and Senator George Voinovich. That request totals $1.5 million ($1.2 million Federal share, $300,000 local share). The initial work being conducted by Parsons Brinckerhoff, Alternatives Analysis Phase I, will include development/screening of alternatives and preliminary ridership and cost estimation. The additional funds will permit conducting detailed ridership estimation (travel demand modeling) and environmental impact analysis, as part of Alternatives Analysis Phase II. Phase II will conclude with selection of a Locally-Preferred Alternative (LPA). Should the LPA include a major build investment such as rail, County, Regional and State approval would be needed, along with additional funding, in order to advance the LPA into the next study phase called Preliminary Engineering.

Next steps for the WSCTP include forming the Policy, Technical, & Stakeholder committees that will be active throughout the study process.*

Local business, government and civic leaders gathered at the LCCC/Spitzer Conference Center on February 5, 2010, for the fourth annual Groundhog Day Economic Development Breakfast, an event coordinated by Team Lorain County and the Lorain County Community Alliance. Speakers included Team Lorain County President Steve Morey, Ken Sislak, Associate Vice President with AECOM and Dr. Jim Robey, Team NEO Vice President of Research. The program featured information about Northern Ohio's economy and Lorain County's efforts to create an environment friendly for business. Robey, said Lorain County's comprehensive approach to attracting new business is the standard for assembling resources to attract new business. When business site selectors ask for detailed information about places, the development staffs may have 72 hours or less to respond. Lorain County is a model "because it's done right, here," Robey said. "We want to applaud you for that."

It's an approach that in the last three years has led to Team Lorain County participating in the creation of 1,600 new jobs with $40 million in new payroll and $60 million in capital investment, Steve Morey, TLC president, said. Last year, Team Lorain County responded to 76 leads for business attraction and worked with 19 business expansion or retention projects, Morey said. The county right now has eight job projects pending in various stages of development, he said.
